and the other end bread, is a puzzle alike the almost universal demand for Dr. Richmond's Samaratan Nervine. He said that it was in fact a genuine medicine—such a compound as every good physician would prescribe for the diseases which it was advertised to cure. Of course it cost less than any druggist would charge for the same article supplied on a physician's prescription, and besides, there was a saving of the doctor's fee in addition. Moreover, by buying the drugs in such enormous quantities, and having a perfect appartus for compounding the mixture, he was not only enabled to get better articles in the first place, but also to present the medicine in better form and at less price than the same preparation could be possibly obtained from any other source. Dr. Richmond has devoted all his energies to the alleviation/of human suffering. With this end in view, and with his whole heart in his great labor for the beneatt of the afflicted, he has achieved marked and merited success. There can be no real success without true merit. That his success is real isevidenced by the fact that his reputation as a man and physician does not deteriorate, and the fact that there is a steadily increasing demand for his Samaratan Nervine proves that it is no patent medicine, and so patent has ever been asked for or obtained. Neither does he advertise it as a cure-all. There are hundreds of diseases that he acknowledges it will not cure. It may be triged that some of these diseases are so widely different that it seems absurd to prescribe the same remedy. They may differ in symptoms, yet in character be precisely similar; and then we must take into consideration the fact that remedies may possess various properties. Thus, some medicines are both topic and alterative; others may be tonic and alexative, the properties differing according to the quantity administered and the time and circumstances which demand its employment. e city. "Yes, that is true; the retailers are justified in charging higher prices than for years past, and if they don't do it, they can't make expenses. There has been an advance of $25 per head on all desirable beef cattle.

I pay to-day $365 per hundred pounds for live weight, againts $535 50 last year. That emens pound for pound at the cattle stand, including waste and all. This is the price for the best grade of cattle, weighing, on an average, 1,000 pounds. The lighter grades can be bought for something less."

"What grade is generally in demand in this market?"

"The lighter grades mostly, though a good many sixteen hundred pounders are slaughtered. There is not the demand here that there is in the New York markets for the finest beef, for the general buyers will not pay the price. So it goes by us to the Eastern markets."

"What is the proportion of waste in a screass?"
